

The other sixteen lanes refused in zero episodes — drawn as a tick at zero, because that is what zero looks like.

Reading: a cliff, not a slope. Nothing sits between 0% and 100%.

A rate that never moves with the price of the choice looks like a policy layer rather than case-by-case moral judgement.

The paper holds the candidate explanations open rather than picking one.